

NK Enterprises for over 2 decades, has provided components, super components and subsystems to Indian Defense & Space industry through various defense research laboratories and high technology EW/Radar/Communication projects.

NK Enterprises represents major product manufacturing companies globally, in space, aerospace and defense industry. We have represented most of these principals for over 20 years. We continue to build new relationships with high technology companies worldwide, manufacturing quality products in these segments.

We serve Indian customers with cutting edge technology products in space electronics, avionics and defense electronics for ground based and onboard communication applications.

Our experienced, technically qualified engineers are available for pre sales consultations. Our application engineers are trained to provide quality post sales support. This makes us a preferred vendor wherever complex technology products are required for mission critical applications.

We constantly create value for all stakeholders involved by being innovative and utilizing the best available source in the market place.

We strongly believe in traditional business values such as customer satisfaction, principal loyalty & flexibility to meet customer requirements. We work as partners with our customers and principals for mutual growth. Our business philosophy is to be a reliable partner, and aim towards excellence in service. Our integrity in all our dealings sets us apart from our competition.
